Multiplying Good Announces Inaugural Class of ChangeMakers

PITTSBURGH, PA – Multiplying Good Pittsburgh’s goal is to cultivate the next generation of servant leaders in Southwest PA. The organization is pleased to announce the inaugural Pittsburgh Class of ChangeMakers - community leaders who have demonstrated a commitment to service and the potential to truly move our community forward.

The 2022 Pittsburgh ChangeMakers class kicks off with an orientation and networking event on August 23 at Ascender in East Liberty, followed by a reception at BrewDog for each of the honorees and their guests. Throughout the fall, ChangeMakers will work both individually and as a cohort to raise financial support for Students In Action, Multiplying Good’s flagship youth leadership development program that uses service-learning to prepare students for their futures.

Each month, the ChangeMakers will participate in volunteer, community, and other networking activities to raise awareness for Students In Action and inspire the community to do their part. The program will culminate in December 2022 with a celebration event recognizing each of the honorees with a Jefferson Award as well as celebrating how they have to made a difference across our Greater Pittsburgh communities.

Since 1972 Multiplying Good has recognized a host of national public figures with the Jefferson Award for their outstanding contributions to our country and its communities. Nationally, the Jefferson Award is the country’s most prestigious honor for service and volunteerism, and honorees—individuals including such notable figures as Barbara Bush, Oprah Winfrey, Peyton Manning, Justice Sonia Sotomayor, and many others—make up a storied group of American heroes whose dedication to service has inspired others to lead.

Multiplying Good is a national nonprofit that channels the power of public service to unleash potential in individuals. For nearly 50 years, Multiplying Good has honored those who build better communities, trained young service leaders, and activated individuals and organizations through a continuum that starts with engagement and culminates in celebration. Multiplying Good's programs fuel personal growth and multiply the power of service to others, and through recognition, it inspires individuals – and those who hear their stories of service – to deliver greater positive change.
